Green Tea Vodka

The story behind this vodka...

Green Tea has the ring of comfort & calm as well as a sense of history. Miles, who loves to read about history & expeditions of the early explorers, is fascinated with the tales of the Silk Route and the teas that fueled so many trips. Soon he was experimenting with bringing some of these delicate tea flavors into his world of spirits. After watching the flavors of various green teas, (yes, he watched the flavors), from several countries, he narrowed his selection down to 4 varieties of green teas from the Anhwei Province. Many vendors sell teas so it was a challenge to find the tea vendor he could trust to regularly ship the high quality of green tea Charbay would need. When distilled, it must have the fragrant aroma, the delicate and distinct flavor as well as the smooth long finish that would become a sipping vodka.

This took years. You can't rush Miles when he has an image in his mind. It's based on the concept that he teaches Marko; the Miles theory for distilling: 'project your thoughts with all your senses.'

Charbay Green Tea Vodka became a new style for us - it's a sipping vodka. And in cocktails: its flavors carry through.
